

I wake up . . .

. . . and see the glimmer of dawn
realize that once again, today,
I will be forced to face the age-old question that never seems to go away
no matter how many times it is answered:
“What am I going to have for breakfast?”

Steve Bloom
February 2005