

Poetic Justice

If there is, indeed, a heaven and a hell, then I know well what my punishment will be:
I'll find myself, from then until eternity, fingers bound with rubber bands,
feet held high, arms flailing, for just a moment over a giant boiling
pot—then plunged
repeatedly,
head first,
by a giant lobster.

Steve Bloom
October 2003