

A Question of Faith

It has been there, on Kings Highway and E. 40th St., as long as I have lived in this Brooklyn neighborhood; probably, I think to myself, ever since the surrounding acres were still farmland. Otherwise how could they have claimed such a larg plot including the old cemetary on the West side of the church itself?

I have passed by countless times, and yet it is only today that I am able to comprehend how strong their faith must be:

trusting God that no one will slip and fall
on an icy sidewalk.
